Ward or Warde (Gorleston and Homersfield, Suffolk, Eng. Granted July 12, 1593.)
Az. a cross between four eagles displayed argent. Crest; on a mount vert, a hind couchant argent. Robson's British Herald, Vol II. 1830.

HISTORICAL

The family of Ward, or Warde, is of English origin. Among the numerous bearers of the name, both in England and Ireland, the name is spelled either with or without the final e. Andrew Warde, the New England settler, spelled it in the latter fashion. A fac-simile of his signature is here reproduced.

Andrew warde

The family belonged to the nobility, including barons, lords, knights, etc. Horatio Ward, Esq., of the Andrew Warde line, in his valuable manuscript volume, has a score or more of these allied families living in the British Isles, including their respective coats of arms. Mr. Ward, who was a gentleman of wealth and culture, spent twenty or more years of his life in London, much of it being given to an assiduous search for the ancestors of Andrew Warde among the many families of that name in the United Kingdom. His researches led him to the conclusion that the American colonist of that name belonged to the Ward family living in Homersfield and Gorleston, Suffolk County, England. From a careful examination of his and other manuscripts, the compiler of this volume is led to believe that Andrew Warde, of Fairfield, Conn., was a grandson of Richard Ward, of Homersfield.

The current opinion, viz., that Andrew was the son of Richard, seems to have been founded upon insufficient evidence. This opinion, no doubt traditional in the beginning, after a time assumed the form of established fact, and thus came to be accepted as genuine. Hence, it will be found that in most instances where reference is made to Andrew Warde by historians and genealogists of the Nineteenth Century the above relationship is assumed to be correct. Later investigations, however, have changed the complexion of things and seem to lead to the conclusion that the earlier writers were mistaken. The single fact, to say nothing of confirmatory proof, that Richard Ward died in the year 1598 in extreme old age, while undoubtedly Andrew was born in or about 1597, goes far to disprove the idea that has so long prevailed. In this connection the conclusions reached by Mr. Emory McClintock, of New York, who has made a long and careful study of this question, are worthy of reproduction and will be read with interest. He says:

"Richard of Homersfield's will seems to indicate that his son Andrew had the bulk of his inheritance, obviously to start him with an estate, or in some business, so that he was certainly over twenty-one years of age in 1597, and perhaps considerably more. My estimate that he was born about 1570, based on his brother Henry's birth in 1559, and that of his brother Ralph's wife in 1572, is not far wrong. I consider that Richard's Andrew was probably married and settled a dozen or more years before our Andrew's wife was born in 1606. With these dates before us, it is fair to ask whether it is conceivable that Richard's Andrew, reputed to be Andrew, of Fairfield, over sixty years of age in 1635, could have been named last in the list of seven to govern Connecticut. Is it conceivable that a man of that age would have been one of the Wethersfield explorers of 1634, as Stiles thinks our Andrew was? . . . Is it conceivable that his large family should all be born when he was aged? . . . That an old man should lead at Wethersfield, and then rush off to settle Stamford, seems incredible.' These difficulties diminish greatly if we regard our Andrew as grandson of Richard, of Homersfield."

In support of the latter conclusion, we have the testimony of a noted genealogist of half a century ago, H. G. Somerby, of Boston, based upon Blomfield's History of Norfolk County, England, to the effect that Andrew, of Fairfield, was the grandson and not the son of Richard.

Further testimony: In a manuscript account of a journey through Suffolk in 1657, by a Mr. Leverland, it is stated that "the descendants of Andrew Ward, son of Richard, of Homersfield, were in New England." (From a private letter from Roswell B. Ward, of New London, Conn., son of Col. James Ward, of Hartford, Conn.)

Extracts from the East Anglian (Suffolk and adjoining counties) New Series, vol. vii, p. 148: "He (Leverland) was a schoolmaster there and a diligent searcher into the antiquities of this county." This is contained in a copy of an old publication entitled "Arms of Suffolk Gentry," published about 1800 by W. Sharp, a learned genealogist of the period. The above quotation gives the arms of the Leverland family, with some additional remarks, as above, concerning the head of the family.

"In this volume there is a letter from a Suffolk lady, who, in a visit to London in 1759, gives the name of Mrs. Leverland as of one well known, whom she met at a friend's house. Mr. and Mrs. Leverland may have been living in London at this time." (Vol. x, p. 272.)

In support of the above presumption, the following well known genealogists make Andrew Warde, of Fairfield, Conn., the grandson of Richard Ward, of Homersfield: H. G. Somerby, Boston, Mass., 1856; Edward C. Marshall, New York City, 1882; Dr. Charles Samuel Ward, New York City, 1870; Christopher L. Ward, Towanda, Pa., 1875.

Unfortunately, a most careful search, instituted by learned genealogists of the present day, has failed to reveal any positive facts regarding Andrew Ward, the supposed father of Andrew Warde, of Fairfield, Conn. This much, however, is known, viz., that a Mr. Andrew Warde, gent., was buried January 23, 1615, at St. Michael's, Cornhill, London. (Harleian Collection, Parish Register Series, vol vii, p. 219.)

It appears, also, that a certain Ralph Ward (which is the name of a brother of Andrew, son of Richard) was buried at the same place. The two names coming together, and the accompanying date, are suggestive features of this discovery. (From private letter of Wharton Dickinson, genealogist, New York City.)

Investigation is now being made along the above line, and it is hoped that information may soon be secured which will set the matter at rest. Until such time, we are left to conjecture, supported by plausible theory, in regard to the pedigree of our honored ancestor.

Extract from address of Emory McClintock, of New York City, at First Reunion of Andrew Ward Association, May 10, 1905:

"Andrew Warde's ancestry was undoubtedly a good ancestry, because he took his place immediately in the affairs of the colony, although probably a man not over 35 years old at the time of the immigration from Watertown, which settled the town of Wethersfield, afterward decided to be the oldest town on the river and in the State." [In the section entitled "Bounds of Towns and Particular Lands" is the following: "It is ordered . . . That every Towne shall set out their bounds . . . and that once in a year three or more persons in the Towne appointed by the Selectmen, shall appoint with the adjacent Townes, and renew their marks . . . . The most ancient Towne (which for the River is determined by the courte to be Wethersfield) to give notice of the time and place of meeting for this perambulation."—From Col. Rec. I, p. 513. "From the point of view of a habitation by white men, Hartford was first occupied by the Dutch; from the point of view of occupation by Englishmen, Windsor can claim to be earliest settled; but from the point of view of settlement by Massachusetts Bay people, by agriculturists and colonists, Wethersfield has undisturbed right to the title." —From "The River Towns of Connecticut," by Chas. M. Andrews, Johns Hopkins University Studies, p. 17.] "Ward was the only man who was a member both of the committee to govern the colony, and of the committee of church members who were appointed to establish the Christian religion in the new colony.

"There were six members of the original church who were deputed to establish the Christian church in the new colony on the river. Andrew Warde headed the list. There were a number, some six or eight, of gentlemen appointed by the General Court of Massachusetts to establish the Colony of Connecticut and govern it until a government should be inaugurated. He was not the first of this list, and the fact that he was not the first, but the last, makes me think he was not an old man, but a man in the prime of life. This is particularly indicated by the fact which Dr. Stiles in his recently published book on Wethersfield indicates, viz., that Andrew Warde was probably one of the first eight men, who came a year before the colony was organized, to the site of Wethersfield, and planted some corn, and decided that there should be a colony there. That is, while the colony was established in 1635, these men, possibly eight or nine, or more, came in 1634, in the summer, and did names coming together, and the accompanying date, are suggestive features of this document. (From private letter of Wharton Dickinson, genealogist, New York City.)

Investigation is now being made along the above line, and it is hoped that information may soon be secured which will set the matter at rest. Until such time, we are left to conjecture, supported by plausible theory, in regard to the pedigree of our honored ancestor.

"Ward was the only man who was a member both of the committee to govern the colony, and of the committee of church members who were appointed to establish the Christian religion in the new colony.

He was not the first of this list, and the fact that he was not the first, but the last, makes me think he was not an old man, but a man in the prime of life. This is particularly indicated by the fact that Dr. Stiles, in his recently published book on Wethersfield indicates, viz., that Andrew Warde was probably one of the first eight men, who came a year before the colony was organized, to the site of Wethersfield, and planted their corn, and decided that there should be a colony there. That is, while the colony was established in 1635 there were, possibly eight or nine, or more, came, in 1634, in the summer, and did preliminary work, and went back for the rest, who came over the following spring.

"In every way, therefore, both as a pioneer—one of the very first to come—and as the one man of all others who was on both commissions of Church and State, Andrew Warde was the founder of Connecticut. He did not appear as prominently as Ludlow, who was named as Governor, but he did more for the colony than Ludlow, who soon got into trouble and left the colony. He was not only the founder of Wethersfield, but he was, I feel sure, the man who named Wethersfield; because he was the only man in the Council who came from there and that could have named the town. He also founded Stamford, and he died in Fairfield, one of the most eminent, capable men in the colony. Until the year of his death he was deputy of Fairfield, and his family has always held the highest rank since in the State of Connecticut and other States.

"He must, therefore, have had good ancestry, but the trouble has been to find the ancestry. For a long time there was a widely believed statement afloat that Andrew Warde was the son of Richard Ward, but that was undoubtedly a mistake. On the other hand, it has been as good as known to a very few for a number of years that he was a grandson of Richard Ward.

"I think we may, therefore, take it as practically certain that our Andrew Warde was son of another Andrew, one of the five sons of Richard Ward, of Gorleston, in England, who was lord of a manor there, and who had property in several parts of the country which was left to his children.

"There were five sons of Richard Ward. The oldest was Henry, born in the year 1559, and the fourth was Ralph. Ralph married a lady who was born in 1572. Now the next son, and the youngest, was Andrew, and Andrew's wife could not, naturally, be expected to have been born in 1606. So far as ages are concerned, they go to show that it was a grandson, and not a son, who came to this country.

"Now, as regards Richard Ward, his will was probated in the Bishop's Court in 1598. He gave to his son Henry all his lands in Horstead and Stoninghall, in Norfolk; to his son Richard all his lands, tenements, etc., in Metfield, Wethersdale, Menham, Sandcroft, Homersfield, St. Michaels and Flixton, in Suffolk, and all his remaining lands in Norfolk; to his son Andrew 333 pounds! He was succeeded by his son Henry Ward, lord of the manor, who was born in 1559 and died in 1645. He sold the manor to people of another name and moved to Norfolk, where the family continued for one or two generations, and then died out without issue. So much for the family of Richard Ward, the father of Andrew Ward, and of whom our Andrew was doubtless the grandson.

"We do not know that Richard Ward was the son of Thomas Ward, of Homersfield, in the northeast corner of Suffolk. Thomas Ward married the daughter of Dr. John Hare. Richard Ward married the daughter of Richard Gunville, of Gorleston, and his wife inherited the manor from her brother, Henry, whose widow died in 1580; and at his widow's death it passed to the wife of Richard Ward.

"There is an old and famous family of Gonvilles, in Suffolk, and this family is believed to be related to them, because they have the same arms as the more illustrious Gonville family who founded Gonville College, and the names of some of their descendants are given in this statement; but the exact connection between the older Gonville family and the Gonville family of Gorleston is not directly traced, although a connection is plain from the arms. The heralds are very particular not to give the same arms to persons who are not of the same family, even if the names are the same. It was a rule that, the consent of the heralds had always to be obtained before any family could get the arms, unless it was the same family; and the arms of this Gunville family are the same as those of the earlier Gonvilles.

"As for the Hare family, there is a similar pedigree traced down to this John Hare, who became a Doctor of Laws, and was a man of property, who died in 1526. His daughter married Thomas Ward. His father was Nicholas Hare, who was the son of John Hare.

"Thus, the Ward family was undoubtedly a good family. It is impossible that this Richard Ward could have sprung suddenly into riches, simply because he married the lady of Gorleston. His father was also a rich man, because he owned property at Homersfield, where his father came from. Although we do not know for certain the ancestry of Thomas Ward, his father, it is quite likely that it may be connected with the Ward family which is contained in the published pedigree I have spoken of. Many persons have attempted to prove this, but the actual proof has not yet been found. Still, the fact that this Thomas Ward was a country gentleman and the owner of property is well certified, and he must have inherited it from his father or mother. This is practically certain, because in those days it was very uncommon for people to make money in trade and then settle in the country and found families.

"So that our Andrew Warde himself came of a Ward family which was of good landed stock in Suffolk, perhaps earlier in Norfolk; his grandmother, Anne Gunville, came of another noted family, and his grandfather, Richard Ward, was the son of a lady named Hare, who came of another noted family."

ANDREW WARDE

Born in England, probably near the beginning of the seventeenth century, Andrew Warde, while yet a comparatively young man, left his home and emigrated to New England. This is said to have been about the year 1630. Among his fellow voyageurs are said to have been John Winthrop, Jr., afterward Governor of Massachusetts; Rev. Mr. Phillips, and other emigrants from Suffolk and Essex counties, who came across the sea to join that resolute and hardy band of pioneers who were conquering a new world. We first hear of Andrew Warde at Watertown, Mass., where he early assumed prominence as a man of affairs in the small colony there established. His name is recorded in the second book of inventory, as having "an homestall of 10 acres, by estimation, bounded, the east by the driftway and John Dogget, the west by Winifred Wolcott, and the north by the great Pond, granted him."

He held this estate as late as the year 1642, some seven or more years after his removal from Watertown.

"The first month and 24th day, 1640. Lands of Andrew Warde, lying in Wethersfield on the Connecticut river. One piece whereon his house and barn stand, containing fouer acres more or less. The ends abutt against the street west and Great Meadows east, the sides against the house lotte of Mr. Smith south, and John Reynolds north. One piece lying in the Great Meadows con: fourteen acres two roods. One piece lying in the Great Meadows. One piece lying in the Great Meadows. . . . . foure acres. One piece lying in on backe lotte con: two acres 3 roods. One piece lying in the Dry Swamp . . . 8 acres. One piece lying in the middle rowe of Wet Swamp . . . 5 acres. One piece lying on Westfield . . . fifty-four acres. One piece lying on the west side of the Connecticut river, 274 acres. These lands abut against the Connecticut river west, the side against the lands of Mr. Smith and Jo. Reynolds, north. The lands across the Conn. river, opposite Wethersfield would be in what is now Glastonbury."—Watertown Land Records.

He was made freeman May 14, 1634. "Under the first charter of the Mass. colony none were regarded as freemen, or members of the body politic, except such as were admitted by the General Court, and took the oath of allegiance to the Government here established. This custom continuing in existence until by the 2d charter the colony was transferred into a province."

AT WATERTOWN

"There is no record extant of any municipal transactions of Watertown, of earlier date than 1634, four years after its first settlement . . . . . No one had a right to vote, unless he were a freeman; none could be admitted a freeman unless he were a church member, and the church was Congregational, wherein its affairs were managed by the votes of the members. The church officers seem to have taken the lead both in civil and ecclesiastical affairs, and it is probable that, previously to 1634, the records were kept accordingly. Whatever those records were, they are lost."—Bond's History of Watertown, pp. 993-4.

"In order for such admission, it was necessary to be a church-member, and for this reason there were some men holding respectable social positions, who never were thus admitted, or not until of advanced age. It was not necessary, however, to be a church-member, or a freeman, in order to hold office in the town or appointments from the Court. This could be done by taking the oath of fidelity, and, in some instances, townsmen, who were not freemen, were allowed to vote. Thomas Mayhew held a responsible appointment from the Governor and Assistants, more than two years before he was admitted freeman."—Bond's Appendix I, p. 1016, § 78: Freemen.

"Within the boundaries of Watertown, as determined by the Court in April, 1635, were embraced the present towns of Watertown, Waltham, Weston, the largest part of Lincoln, and that part of Cambridge lying east of Mount Auburn Cemetery, between Fresh Pond and Charles River."—Bond's App. I, p. 990.

So, knowing the man well from his reputation in later years, and judging from the fact that he was honored with a place upon an important commission, we may safely conclude that during those few years of residence in Watertown, Andrew Warde was building for himself a reputation for honesty of purpose, sagacity of insight, and skill in the direction of municipal affairs; that he was growing every day in the esteem of his fellow men, and assuming the exalted position of a leader in all that pertained to the temporal and spiritual welfare of the community with which his lot was cast. The second period of his life was passed at Wethersfield, Conn. The occasion of his removal from Watertown to this place appears from a perusal of the minutes of the Bay Colony at its session held May 3, 1635-6. They are as follows:

"A Commission graunted to severall persons to governe the People att Conecticott for the space of a Yeare, now nexte comeing. That some present governm't may be observed, thinke meete, & soe order, that Roger Ludlowe Esqr. Willm Pynchon Esqr. John Steele, Wm. Swaine, Henry Smith, Willm Phelps, Willm Westwood, & Andrew Warde, or the greater p'te of them shall have full power and aucthorite to hear and determine in a judiciall way by witnesses vpon oathe, examine within the said plantacon, all those differences w'ch may arise between 'partie & partie' as also vpon misdemeanors to inflict corporall punishment or imprisonment to ffine & levy the same if occacon so require," etc. . . . .

Six public courts of this Commission were held during the year. Four of them at New Towne (Hartford), one at Dorchester (Windsor), and one at Watertowne (Wethersfield). The last meeting of the Commissioners' Court before the expiration of their year of office was held Feb. 21st, 1637.

Following out these instructions, Andrew Warde removed from Watertown, Mass., and settled with his family in Wethersfield. He was a member of the Upper House when war was declared against the Pequots, May 1, 1637 (o. s.). This was the first formal assertion of the sovereignty of the Colony. He was twice a member of the Committee, or Lower House of the General Court in 1637, and of the same House again in 1638. He was Deputy for four sessions after the confederation of the three towns (Windsor, Hartford and Wethersfield) into a colony in 1639. Afterward he was frequently a member of both branches of the Gen'l Court. In 1637 he was a collector of rates, and in connection with Cap't John Mason and Mr. Allen he was ordered to go to Agawam (Springfield) and treat with the Indians of Waronocke (Westfield) concerning the tribute toward the charges (assessments) of our war. In 1637 he was a member of the church in Wethersfield, and one of its staunchest and most esteemed supporters. Wethersfield, the oldest town in Connecticut, received from Watertown its first considerable emigration in 1634. Pyquaug, its Indian name, was changed in 1635 to Watertown, and later to Wethersfield. The few persons known in the Wethersfield records as the "adventurers" (i. e., occupants of lands not deriving their title from town), were either in person, or by representatives, the settlers of 1634. Stiles, the historian, remarks: "The interesting question naturally arises at this point, who were the hardy, we might almost say reckless, persons who first established themselves here? The problem is difficult of solution, and perhaps may never be settled beyond dispute. It is conceded that they were a mere handful in numbers, probably not a dozen all told. There is little doubt that they were all from Watertown, Mass. A church had been organized there as early as June, 1630. Under the leadership of Sir Richard Saltonstall, and the spiritual care of Rev. George Phillips, both of whom, in company with Governor Winthrop, had arrived there in June of that year."

It was not until May of the following year that they had the permission of the General Court of Massachusetts "to remove whither they pleased so they continue under this government." Wethersfield's existence as a parish dates from the spring of 1636. The General Court of Connecticut, at its first session, April 26, 1636, ratified and confirmed a dismissal of certain members of the Watertown (Mass.) church, which had been granted on the 29th of March, 1635. The persons thus dismissed were: Andrew Warde, Rev. John Sherman, Robert Reynolds, John Strickland, Jonas Weed and Robert Coe.

The first mentioned of this company was Andrew Warde. He was one of the foremost men of the colony, and seems to have left Watertown immediately after being admitted there as a freeman—May, 1634—and come to Wethersfield, or else some other person, acting in his interest, preceded him (he following in May, 1635) and took possession for him of 20 acres of the "Adventurers' Land." Prior to his removal to Rippowams (Stamford), in 1640, he sold these lands to Robert Rose, who already held the same amount in his own right. So, with these members of the Watertown church, our ancestor came to Wethersfield.

Others, doubtless, were in the company, but these are mentioned as the leaders. They were authorized to form anew in a church covenant in Connecticut, and they promised to renew the covenant, so the record of the General Court says. Mr. Warde was one of the five members then constituting that court. With the possible exception of Robert Reynolds, the persons named formed the nucleus of the new ecclesiastical society.

In 1637, when the General Court was divided into an upper and a lower section, "Andrew Warde and William Swayne, Gentleman, became members of the upper section," and hence may be said to have been the first members of what would now be called the Senate, from Wethersfield.

In the History of Connecticut, by Dr. Benjamin Trumbull, we find the following notes:

"Mr. William Swayne, Mr. Thurston Raynor, Mr. Henry Smith, Mr. Andrew Warde, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. John Deming were some of the chief men who settled the town of Wethersfield. These were the civil and religious fathers of the colony. They formed its free and happy constitution, were its legislators and some of the chief pillars of the church and commonwealth. They, with many others of the same excellent character, employed their abilities and their estates for the prosperity of the colony."

Speaking of the court which assembled in Hartford on Monday, May 1, 1637, he says: "As they were to deliberate on matters in which the lives of the subjects and the very existence of the colony were concerned, the towns for the first time sent committees. The spirited measures adopted by this court render the names of the members worthy of perpetuation." The magistrates were Roger Ludlow, Esq., Mr. Welles, Mr. Swain, Mr. Steele, Mr. Phelps and Mr. Warde.

AT STAMFORD.

We now pass to the third period in the history of our ancestor, which began with his removal from Wethersfield to the town which is now known as Stamford, Conn. In the Church of Christ to-day there are, as the Scripture saith, "differences of administration," or, as we should say, "diversity of talent." Some men are peculiarly gifted as leaders of spiritual thought; others have talent for stimulating and turning into practical and elevating channels the social instinct of the members; others possess marked capacity for leadership in new enterprises. These last are the organizers, the men who assume and sustain the executive burdens of every scheme looking to the welfare of their particular church.

The same diversity of talent is observable in the men who perform the duties of pioneers in the work of transforming rural settlements into towns and towns into cities and cities into great centers of industry. Some there are who seem to have developed very largely a love for and skill in the building up of the waste places into habitable homes, where men and women dwell in peace under the protection of just laws, enforced by righteous rulers.

Andrew Warde seems to have had this intuitive love of town building. He was a great organizer. Wise in counsel, energetic in advancing schemes for the development of the resources of new fields, and possessing a personal magnetism which awoke enthusiasm in his enterprises and gained recruits for carrying forward the plans which his fertile brain had matured.

He was a leader in Watertown, a leader in Wethersfield, a leader in Stamford, a leader in Fairfield. Wherever he cast his lot he assumed the leadership—not boastfully, not in any sense arbitrarily, but by sheer force of persistency in getting things done and through the recognition of his peculiar abilities by his fellowmen which invariably followed.

The present town of Stamford was originally settled under the name of "Wethersfield Men's Plantation." As was the case in his earlier career, when he left Watertown to found a new habitation in Wethersfield at the behest of the Bay Colony, so now, through negotiations with the General Court of New Haven, Andrew Warde, in company with others, becomes the founder of a new settlement. I quote from Dr. Huntington's admirable history of Stamford, Conn., p. 15.

The following record of the decision of the General Court of New Haven, held the 14th day of the ninth month, 1640, exhibits the title under which the colonists were to take possession of their new domain: "Whereas, Andrew Warde and Robert Coe, of Wethersfield, were deputed by Wethersfield men, the 30th of the eighth month, commonly called October, 1640, to treat at New Haven about the plantation lately purchased by said town called Toquams, which, being considered of, it was agreed upon by the said court and justices aforesaid, that they shall have the said plantation upon the terms following: First, that they shall repay unto the said town of New Haven all the charges which they have disbursed about it, which comes to thirty-three pounds, as appears by a note or schedule hereunto annexed; secondly, that they shall reserve a fifth part of said plantation to be disposed of at the appointment of this court to such desirable persons as may be expected, or as God shall send hither, provided that if within one whole year such persons do not come to fill up those lots so reserved, that then it shall be free for the said people to nominate and present to this court some persons of their own choice, which may fill up some of those lots so reserved, if this court approves of them; thirdly, that they join in all points with this plantation in the form of government here settled, according to agreement, betwixt this court and Mr. Samuel Eaton about the plantation of Totokett. These articles being read, together with Mr. Samuel Eaton's agreement, in the hearing of the said parties, or deputies, it was accepted by them, and in witness thereof they submitted their names to the articles in the face of the court.

"The following passage is from the first book of the Stamford records, defaced in some places and wanting in others. The effaced portions are here included in parentheses. The earlier records are all in the handwriting of Richard Laws. The first paragraph, which is a mere title, was evidently inserted after the name of the settlement had been changed. '1640-41. A townebo(ok of the) freeholders of the towne (of Stamford as it) was afterwards called, but now Rippowam, contay(n)in(g the acts) and conclusions of the compagnie of Wethersffeld men, to (begin a) removal thither this Winter. And also their most materiale acts and agreements, touching the place, how they came by it, their rat(es) and accounts, their divisions and grants of land, and records of every man's lands, and passages of land from one to another.' First, these men whose names are underwritten have bound thems(elves) under the paine of forfiture of 5 lb. a man, to goe or sende to Ripp(owam) to begin and prosecute the designe of a plantation there, by ye 16th o(f) May next, the rest, theire familyes, thither by ye last of Novembe(r), 12 months, viz.:

Ri Denton,
Ma Mitchell,
Thur Rainor,
Rob't Coe,
And Warde and fifteen others.'".

Andrew Warde seems to have continued his municipal activities during his sojourn in Stamford. He was honored by the inhabitants of that town in his election, first as constable, October 26, 1642, and later as magistrate, which office he assumed October 27, 1646, and held for the term of one year. He represented Stamford in the General Court of New Haven Colony in 1644.

On the 27th of October, 1641, he was with Francis Bell, Representative of Stamford, at New Haven, and both were admitted members of the court and received the charge of freemen to treat with the court about the plantation (Toquams, or Stamford), lately purchased.

In the October (1642) session of the Court, "Goodman Warde" is chosen constable for Stamford. His office was a very different one from that which is now discharged under that name. It was one of high dignity and of solemn responsibility. (Huntington's Hist. of Stamford, pp. 67-8.)

At the assembling of the General Court at New Haven, April 15, 1643, his letter was presented, written in the name of freeplanters, introducing Capt. John Underhill and Richard Gildersleeve as Deputies to the court at Stamford, at the same time requesting that a magistrate might be chosen for the better administration of the prudential affairs of that town. He, with Rob't

Coe, was appointed to assist at the next General Court of Election at New Haven, in counsel and advice for the more comely carrying on of public affairs. He was again elected one of the Deputies from Stamford to the General Court of New Haven in 1644 and 1646. At the same time Andrew Warde, George Hull and William Beardsley, of Stamford, were nominated as assistants to join with the magistrates for the execution of justice in the towns of Connecticut by the seaside. He purchased Simon Hoyt's lot, west of Hyde Pond, which he sold in 1653 to Edward Adams, and purchased from Alexander Bryan, the same year, Thomas Newton's home and house lot on the Ludlow Square. He was one of the most important and influential men in Fairfield.

AT FAIRFIELD, CONN.

From address of Henry C. Sturges, Esq., of Fairfield, at the unveiling of the Andrew Warde monument in Fairfield cemetery, June 13, 1907:

"This is a memorable occasion, and a notable gathering on a most historic site, and no better preparation could be made for the exercises of the day than to dwell for a few moments on that far off time when Andrew Warde dwelt almost under the shadow of this building (Fairfield Historical Society Building) and had for his neighbors one of the goodliest companies to be found in all the eastern colony. Imagine, then, that you are once more standing on this spot and gazing around you at the ancient settlement of 1651. But what a change! To the north, as a background, arises the rock, crowned with a growth of lordly pines. The scene reminds you of a western clearing fifty years ago. Stumps of trees are in evidence, and rocky grounds. There are well defined trails to the north, south, east and west, following the roads of the present day. On the left is a lovely pond seen through surrounding trees and on these trails around the pond are rude log structures one story in height. The northernmost house to the left is the first Fairfield home of Andrew Warde, and opposite we see the fine homes of Roger Ludlow and Nathan Gold. Facing us on the corner stands the first home of John Banks, the Surveyor of Fairfield, to whose skill we owe it that the squares of the town were laid out in such a regular manner. To our left, where Dr. Donaldson now resides, we see the home of Richard Lyon, and earlier of Thomas Wheeler, Jr., worthy ancestors of the good man who founded this library. Next to him stands the home of Thomas Pell, who later on was to give the name to Pell-Ham-Manor, and opposite (on the postoffice side) the home of Humphrey Hyde, who afterwards gave the name to the pond; and about where the depot now stands, the first houses in Fairfield of Joshua Jennings and Francis Bradley, the progenitors of families who for generations have stood for what was great and good in town and nation. On the site of what is now the library corner, there was at that time the homestead of Alexander Knowles, a man prominent in public affairs, and judge of the

Gen. Court of Conn. Looking up the street to the right, stood the house of Philip Pinckney, ancestor of Gen. Charles Coleman Pinckney, of Revolutionary fame, and those distinguished men and women whom South Carolina is proud to call her own. Opposite Philip Pinckney (the Flint corner) the homestead of Henry Rowland; opposite to him, Anthony Wilson, and to the southward, the home of Capt. Richard Osborn, hero of the Pequot War. There were no fences, the home lots being defined by stone markings, much uncleared land and dense forests on all sides. To properly people this wild scene, remember, that the period of Andrew Warde's sojourn covered that part of English history given up to the Cavalier and Round Head, the reign of Charles I, his execution, the Protector, the death of Cromwell, and the accession of Charles III, all proclaimed on these streets. The homes and household were of the simplest, but the keynote was Godliness. The Bible, but also the great and little gun and sword, were to be found in every household. Andrew Warde came to place on record the most memorable of God's passages in settling his people in this country. On or about the time that he moved his residence to what we are pleased to call Main street, many of his old neighbors moved with him—so we find in close proximity again the homes of Roger Ludlow, Andrew Warde, Nathan Gold, Richard Lyon, Thomas Pell, Thomas Sherwood, Robert Hawkins, Jacob Gray, Alexander Bryan, all his near neighbors, while from the Church corner south, reading right to left, were located John Banks, John Burr, Nehemiah Olmsted, Nathaniel Baldwin, Simon Hoyt, John Nichols, Henry Rowland, and opposite, the Pinckneys and Burrs, names identified with every phase of early colonial history. Mention has been made of the crudeness of the dwellings and the roughness of the surroundings. It was years after the time of Andrew Warde that the town assumed shape and comeliness. There were structures of stone as well as of logs, but the early settlers were of sturdy stock, hardened to toil.

"Appended to the will of Andrew Warde are the names of Alexander Knowles (who probably drew up the document), and Nathan Gold, both lifelong friends and neighbors.

"Andrew Warde lived among us for some fourteen years, dying in 1659. As we wend our way this afternoon to the ancient cemetery, where he was laid to rest, and listen to the narration of his life and good works, having previously visited his home and tried to picture the town as it then was, and the inhabitants as they moved to and fro in their various avocations, will it not be natural to try and imagine the last scene in the drama—his funeral—the beat of muffled drums and armed men bearing the bier to the rough church structure, a notable gathering, among many others the names Nathan Gold, Alexander Knowles, John Banks, representatives of Church and State delegations, also representatives of the Burrs, Jennings, Beers, Lyons, Wheelers, Gen. Court of Conn. Looking up the street to the right, stood the house of Philip Pinckney, ancestor of Gen. Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, of Revolutionary fame, and those distinguished men and women whom South Carolina is proud to call her own. Opposite Philip Pinckney (the Flint corner) the homestead of Henry Rowland; opposite to him, Anthony Wilson, and to the southward, the home of Capt. Richard Osborn, hero of the Pequot War. There were no fences, the home lots being defined by stone markings, much uncleared land and dense forests on all sides. "And as we stand around the spot where his ashes repose, let us hope, if it is possible, for the spirits of those long since dead to revisit the scenes of their earthly habitations, that the invisible presence of this noble company of the founders of ancient Fairfield may be present with us in spirit, as they were present in body in that long past day in 1651."

Upon the same occasion an admirable address was made by Judge John Hoyt Perry, of Fairfield, upon the topic, "Andrew Warde as a Citizen of Fairfield." Judge Perry's remarks, largely historical, covered much of that which has already been recited. He closed with this eloquent tribute:

"We do not mark a grave to-day, we memorialize a life; and of that life the foregoing is the story as told in the records of the communities where it was spent. It is merely an articulated skeleton showing fitness for work, adequacy under burdens, capacity to accomplish, and because it is of necessity a skeleton we miss the flesh and blood which, clothing bare capacity, make for human interest and attractiveness. Candor compels us to admit that he was not the ablest or most important or most famous citizen of the town. Roger Ludlow heads the list of several to whom history accords at least as high a place as his. He was simply a well bred, intelligent, conscientious, public spirited, ambitious man. He led a useful, trusted life and followed the way. He consorted with the best and served his fellows. His descendants have achieved distinction in widely separated fields, and in this town are called by the names of Jennings, Sturges, Wheeler, Wakeman, Gould, Burr, Bulkley, Ogden, Dimon and Perry. Whether they have preserved the Ward tradition of disinterested public service you can best decide. And now, your labors, long since done, your untiring quest for something better satisfied, rest well, Andrew Warde, Adventurer. You lie in friendly soil. Fairfield cherishes your memory, honors your descendants and is a better town for your guiding hand upon its infancy. 'Rest well!'"

Prof. Edward J. Ward of Hamilton College, then delivered an address upon the topic, "Our Debt to the Fathers," which was in part as follows:

"Here is our debt to Andrew Warde that in his life he built and handed down to us the legacy of a strong, deep chested, clean limbed, sturdy body, and a mind, firm fibered, balanced, sane. In his work he was faithful in places of public trust and so gives us a heritage of faithfulness; in his home he was true and so the stream of our heredity is pure. It is not the positions that he held and the power that he gained that make us his debtors; it is the fact that he was worthy of those positions and that his will to do the right was stronger than the temptations which came with the power that he had. This is a heredity better than ancestral halls or lands or crests. With a good heritage of body, brain and will a child is rich. Without this, though he be heir to the wealth of the Indies, he is poor. In the will of that old Puritan, Sturgeses, Osbornes, Rowlands, and other ancestors of those who will this afternoon dedicate the monument to his memory.

"And as we stand around the spot where his ashes repose, let us hope, if it is possible, for the spirits of those long since dead to revisit the scenes of their earthly habitations, that the invisible presence of this noble company of the founders of ancient Fairfield may be present with us in spirit as they were present in body on that long past day in 1651."

Upon the same occasion an admirable address was made by Judge John Hurd Perry, of Fairfield, upon the topic, "Andrew Warde as a Citizen of Fairfield." Judge Perry's remarks, largely historical, covered much of that which has already been recited. He closed with this eloquent tribute:

"We do not mark a grave to-day, we memorialize a life; and of that life the foregoing is the story as told in the records of the communities where it was spent. Whether they have preserved the Ward tradition of disinterested public service you can best decide. And now, your labors long since done, your untiring quest for something better satisfied, rest well, Andrew Warde, Adventurer. You lie in friendly soil. This is a heredity better than ancestral halls or lands or crests. With a good heritage of body, brain and will a child is rich. Without this, though he be we read: 'The last will and testament of Andrew Warde, situate and living in Fairfield, being at present, through mercy, well both in mind and memory.' Then he goes on to bequeath to his wife and children his estate. But his true bequest to his posterity was not the third of his estate or the forty pounds given to this child or that; it was in the fact that, in mind and body and in character, he was well."

Thus ended the life of this good man. His career was an eventful one. Covering a period of only threescore years, it left its impress upon four distinct communities. The records of Watertown, Wethersfield, Stamford and Fairfield, each in turn bear witness to the valued services of Andrew Warde. His abilities, quickly recognized, secured for him honorable position, placed him in the front rank and singled him out as a man whose fitness to represent his constituents honorably and with discretion was unchallenged. Unfortunately, we have no written statements and very few traditions upon which to base an estimate of his domestic life. There is likewise a paucity of detail as regards his religious and ecclesiastical life; but in the absence of positive information touching these matters, the whole career of the man points unerringly to a beautiful home life and a consistent daily walk and conversation. As an office-bearer in the church he undoubtedly brought to the duties of his office the same honest purpose, discriminating judgment and tireless zeal in service which marked his career in secular affairs.

Would that some contemporary of our distinguished ancestor were here to-day to draw us within the inner circle of that life, whose outward development was so fruitful of good to his fellowmen, so genial in its companionships, so honest and painstaking in its conduct of business and legislative pursuits, so intense in its application to duty.

THE GENERATION FOLLOWING

In his valuable history, Savage gives a list of the nine children of Andrew Warde, following its recital with these significant words, "of not one of whom is the date of birth known, except Andrew's (1647)." After careful examination of genealogical data contained in local and State histories, biographical volumes and private papers, I have found nothing to contradict that statement. But, while we may not be certain of the exact year of birth of any of these children, we may unquestionably determine the approximate ages of at least several of them. In the valuable manuscript treatise of H. G. Somerby, Esq., of Boston, official genealogist for the N. E. Historical and Genealogical Society, upon the Andrew Warde family, we note the following items:

"The children of Andrew Warde and Hester, his wife, were: (1) Edmund, named in his father's will as being away; as he is not alluded to in his mother's will, he probably died before 1666, without issue. (2) Anna. (3) William, probably born in 1635. In 1656, he purchased a house and land in Fairfield, where he died in 1676, and his widow administered upon his estate. (4) Mary, b. 1637. (5) John, b. 1639. (7) Abigail, b. 1643. (8) Andrew, b. 1645. In 1668 he purchased of his brother Samuel half of the house and home lot which was left to them by their father. (9) Samuel, b. 1647. He died at Fairfield, Jan. 8, 1693, and his widow and son Edmund administered upon his estate.

"The time of birth of Andrew Warde's children is calculated from that of the youngest son. In the year 1659, the date of the father's will, Andrew and Samuel were both minors, and the legacy to them was to be divided when the youngest of the two became of age. The town records of Fairfield show that this division took place in 1668, which places Samuel's birth in 1647. Supposing two years to have intervened between the births of all the children, it would give the ages as I have enumerated them. This calculation is strengthened by the fact that William purchased a house and lot in 1656, the year when he probably arrived at his majority. As Edmund is not alluded to in his mother's will, and no mention made of him in subsequent records, it is probable that he died before that time unmarried. It is also fair to presume that John was not living when his mother died, as his children only are spoken of in her will, and he does not afterward appear in any records."

The mere repetition of the names of the families with which the children of Andrew Warde made alliance seems at once to link more closely the men and women of the present day with the old Fairfield ancestor. The Hunts, Bulkleys, Wakemans, Hawleys, Perrys, Wheelers, Nichols, Dimons, Meigs, Lockwoods and Ogdens, are all of to-day, the representatives of large and influential families in New England, in the Empire State, and in many other States of the Union. Of these families the descendants of Andrew emigrated to what was then the frontier country of western New York and settled in Erie, Genesee and Monroe Counties. They were prominent among the founders of Buffalo, Rochester, and other cities in that part of the State. The descendants of Samuel became Westchester Co. and New York City people, and through this line have come many of the influential men and women of the Metropolis.

The will of Andrew Warde, dated Fairfield, June 8, 1659, is as follows:

"The last will and testament of Andrew Warde, situate and living in Fairfield, being at present, through mercy, well both in mind and memory, yet not knowing how the Lord may deal with mee. I therefore commit my soul to God that gave it, and my body to a comely buriall. And for all my estate as followeth: All our debts first pay'd. Imprimis, I give unto Ester, my beloved wife, forty pounds, to be pay'd out of my movable estate, and one-third part of all my lands and housing in Fairfield during her widowhood; but in case a second marriage be performed then to possess noe part of the said housing or land any longer, but my will is, a third part of what the said lands may be indifferently judged to be rented per annum shall be pay'd unto her use during her life. 2. I give unto my sonn, John, fifty pounds, to be pay'd unto him at the age of one and twenty years. 3. I give unto my daughter, Sarah, forty pounds, to be pay'd within one year after her marriage. 4. I give unto my daughter, Abigall, forty pounds, to be pay'd unto her at the age of eighteen years. 5. I give unto Andrew and Samuel all my housing and lands, with such rights and dues that doth belong, as an installment, equally to be divided when the eldest commeth to the age of one and twenty. And what improvement can be made before the said Andrew commeth to the age of one and twenty, to be equally, to be divided between them. And what improvement can be made of my sonn Samuel's part before he commeth to be twenty-one years of age, to be for his proper use. And at twenty-one years of age to enjoy the full propriety, according to the promises, yet not at all molesting or hindering my wife's thirds during her widdowhood; and in case any of my two sonns Andrew and Samuel dye before they come to age of one and twenty, as aforesaid, then my will that the survivor shall enjoy all that is due to both. 6. And, farther, my will is that what doth remayn of my movable estate after all debts and legacies be pay'd, shall equally be divided between my two sonns, Andrew and Samuel.

"7. And for the rest of my children, they have received their full portions already, except my sonn Edmond, who, if he come to this place, my will is that out of my two younger sons, Andrew and Samuel's, portions, there may be pay'd twenty pounds. In witness to the premises that this is my true and last will, revoking all others, I have hereunto subscribed my name (tho written all by my owne hand).

"ANDREW WARDE."

This will was probated at a session of the court held at Fairfield the 20th day of October, 1659. The inventory of the estate was exhibited to the court and attested by the widow, Ester Warde. There being no executor mentioned in the will, the court duly appointed Ester Warde and William Warde, the son of Andrew, as his administrators. The inventory showed the estate to be valued at the sum of £242 10s.

PEDIGREE OF HESTER (SHERMAN) WARDE.

"The Shermans are of German origin. In the fatherland, the name Sherman, Schurman, Schearmann, Scherman, often occurs, and it was no doubt transferred many centuries ago to the vicinity of London by the Anglo-Saxon emigration, where it still remains numerous. From this metropolitan stock, a scion was transplanted to Dedham, Essex Co., England. The name is derived from the original occupation of the family; they were cloth dressers, or shearers of the cloth. The family at Dedham retained the occupation, and also the coat of arms, worn by those residing in or about London. In New England are found two distinct families bearing the name of Sherman. One of these descends from William Sherman, who came to Plymouth with the Pilgrims and settled at Marshfield, where his descendants still remain. Of his place of birth, or English antecedents, we know nothing. The other is the Dedham stock, a branch of which emigrated to New England and settled in the vicinity of Boston, Mass. The first of the name of that line, of whom we have any knowledge, and perhaps the one who originally emigrated there, was Henry Sherman, the ancestor of Hester (Sherman) Warde, and also of these distinguished men who occupied so exalted a place in the nation's history —Roger Sherman, and the brothers Gen. William T. and Senator Sherman. Edmund Sherman, grandson of the above Henry, was born in England and married Judith Angier. They came to America about 1632 and settled in Watertown, Mass.; thence removed to Wethersfield, Conn., and finally → to New Haven, Conn., where they died. They had as their fifth child Hester, ~~born Apr.~~ 1, 1606."—Rev. David Sherman, A.M., Wilbraham, Mass., in N. E. Gen. and Biog. Reg., vol. 24, pp. 62-3.

③ FATHER

There are other families of the Ward name living in the United States which have become prominent in social, political and literary circles.

Andrew Henshaw Ward, a distinguished genealogist of half a century ago, tells, in his History of the William Ward family, of the fame achieved by men like General Artemus Ward, of Revolutionary times, and Dr. William Hayes Ward, the eminent writer of our own day.

Then there is the Ward family of Rhode Island, one member of which, the Hon. Samuel Ward, was a member of the Continental Congress and thrice Governor of his State, and a large family of this name in New Jersey, in whose ranks are found men and women of eminence in business and social circles.

It is well known that the Wards of Massachusetts and Connecticut came from the same general locality in England and the coat of arms of the Samuel Ward (Rhode Island) line is similar in almost every detail to that of the Andrew Warde family. It is not unlikely, therefore, that a close family connection might be traced between these three families in the Old Country.

(2) WILLIAM WARD (M.D.), Fairfield, Conn. b. prob. 1630-1635; d. 1675/6; m. 1657, Deborah Lockwood; b. Oct. 12, 1636/7; dau. Robert Lockwood. Was appointed by Gen. Court of Conn. as Surgeon, to accompany Fairfield Co. troops in expedition against the Narragansetts. He lost his life in the attack on the Indian fort, in the "Great Swamp fight." He purchased the Perry house and home lot of Dr. Thomas Pell's heirs on Newton Sq.

Oct. 18, 1656: "William Ward purchased of Henry Lyon a dwelling house and four acres of land, also land of other individuals." Feb. 14, 1669: "The town granted to William Ward, three acres of land." May 2, 1678: "William Ward, deceased, did in his lifetime purchase of Joseph Middlebrook, lands, etc." Mar. 4, 1679: "William Ward in his lifetime, and his successor, since his death, hath had quiet possession upwards of twenty years, as his own free land, of a house lot in Fairfield, of four acres, also other lands described in the records."—From Fairfield Town Records.

Mar. 4, 1676: "Inventory of the Estate of William Ward, deceased, £595. 11s. 9d. The widow made oath that the statement was true."—Probate Records at Greenfield, Conn.

He was made freeman on May 31, 1657. According to page 10 of the Fairfield Prob. Rec. of that period, on Mar. 4, 1675/6, an inventory was made of the estate of Ensign William Ward. An ensign was a commissioned officer, holding his power from the Government and Legislature.

(3) ANNE WARD. d. July 23, 1718; m. prob. 1650, Caleb Nichols; d. 1690; son Francis Nicholls. He came to Stratford, Conn., with his father and other members of the family, in 1639.

"He resided at Stratford until about 1670, when, with most of his family, he removed to Woodbury, Conn., although retaining all his proprietary rights at Stratford, which, together with his plantation at Woodbury, according to his last will and testament, were devised to his wife and children and afforded each a handsome competency. He evidently enjoyed the esteem of his fellow citizens of Stratford during his protracted residence there, as, on several occasions, they honored him with the important office of Townsman, or Selectman, the Townsman being, as it were, the moral and economic conservator of the township."—"Sergeant Francis Nicholls and His Descendants," p. 16.

This Joseph Hawley was in Stratford, Conn., a proprietor as early as 1650, and probably a few years earlier. His home lot was No. 37, which he purchased of Richard Miles in or before the year 1650. He was prominent in the town and a more than usually energetic business man. He purchased of the Indians a large tract of land in Derby, of which the town allowed him to retain the old Indian planting field, and also another tract which joined it, including Great Hill. He was chosen Deputy in 1665, and many times thereafter until near his decease. His will is dated 1689. He died the following year. (2) Oct. 17, 1682; Ephraim Nichols; b. Referring to the stone of Hester Ward in the old Fairfield, Conn., cemetery: "The least preserved of these tomb waifs * * * is the one inscribed to Mrs. Hester Lord; date not legible, but probably 1730. She was a descendant of the noted settler, Andrew Warde, was endowed with rare qualities of mind and form, and married successively four men of wealth and position. Tradition reports her a woman who was widely respected, whose abundant means were dispensed with an open hand."—Address of Wm. A. Beers as published in "The Old Burying Ground of Fairfield," p. 227.

As to the name "Hester": "Andrew Warde's wife was baptized 'Hester.' It is a good old English variant of Esther, and is preferred in literature, as in the 'Scarlet Letter' and other novels. In Andrew's will it is 'Ester.' In her own, it is 'Hester,' both for herself and her grandchild, daughter of William Ward, and 'Hester Burr' for another grandchild. The grandchild, Hester Ward, married four times, and calls herself finally, 'Hester Lord' in her own will. She is also called 'Hester' in her first marriage contract. Abigail, daughter of Andrew Warde, had a daughter who was named Hester in her father's (Dimon's) will. Moses Dimon's grandson, John, had a daughter baptized 'Hester.' * * * Andrew's wife was surely Hester, and it was only long after her death that those who knew better succeeded in making her descendants call their girls 'Esther.' I do not find Hester Ward's name ever written 'Esther' in her lifetime."—Emory McClintock correspondence.

(11) SARAH NICHOLS. b. Dec. 1, 1651; m. Oct. 20, 1674, Moses Wheeler, Jr.; b. July 5, 1651; d. Jan. 30, 1724; son Moses and Miriam (Hawley) Wheeler.

Moses Wheeler, 1st, was born in England, probably in the County of Kent in 1598, where the Wheeler family had resided for over four hundred years. He left London in 1638 and, coming to America, joined the New Haven Colony, and was among the first to receive an allotment of land in that Colony. He married Miriam Hawley, a sister of Joseph Hawley, one of the first and most influential settlers in this Colony. Here he resided until 1648, when he was expelled from the Colony, because of a slight infringement of one of the Blue Laws, for which this Colony was so noted. According to tradition, he had been absent from home for several months. The day upon which he returned from his long journey was Sunday. The happiness which he naturally felt on being united to his family once more completely banished from his remembrance all idea of the Blue Laws, and he accordingly kissed his wife and children. This act coming to the knowledge of the authorities, he was immediately expelled from the Colony. He then joined the little settlement of Stratford. Here he purchased his home lot from the Indians on the shore, near what is now known as Sandy Hollow. He afterwards bought a vast tract of land near the Ferry. He was allowed by the General Court to keep the Ferry. He built a stone house on his property, which descended to his son, Moses 2d, who about the year 1670 built a wooden house very near the old stone one, which remained standing until May 12, 1891, when the old ruin was blown up with dynamite. (See photo.) Ten years previous to his death, Moses Wheeler 1st disposed of most of his property to his son—Moses 2d, to whom the homestead descended; Samuel, and his son-in-law, Joseph Walker, receiving land he had bought of the Indians as far north as Derby.

"The Indians living on the Golden Hill, Bridgeport, reservation, when all but four of the tribe had departed to the happy hunting grounds, in 1659 gave their first deed to the whites, and Moses Wheeler was the lucky man."—From Bridgeport Telegram.

Moses Wheeler 1st, besides being one of the largest land owners, was one of the leading and most influential men in the town. He was a strong, powerful man, of whom the Indians stood in mortal terror. No wonder, if tradition is true. One day several Indians called at his house. He understood that their purpose was to kill him. He was engaged in making soap. It was boiling in a huge kettle and was very hot. He invited his guests to take a drink of cider, and while they were partaking, he took the paddle with which he was stirring it and covered them with the scalding soap. He died on the 15th of January, 1698, aged 100 years, and enjoys the distinction of being the first centenarian white man in New England. He is buried in the old Congregational Church yard at Stratford. A rough stone, cut from the rocks at the homestead, marks his grave. Moses Wheeler 2d died Jan. 30, 1724, in the 74th year of his age. He is buried at the side of his father, and a similar stone marks his grave. He left a large estate, making him among the wealthy men of Stratford. His son Elnathan occupied the homestead. Stephen Wheeler, a descendant, was the last of the family to live there.

The name "Edmund Ward" is closely identified with the history of Eastchester, Westchester Co., N. Y. In Bolton's Hist. of Westchester Co., vol. 1, p. 211, we find the following item: "In the year 1700 it was resolved by the inhabitants of the town of Eastchester that Edmund Ward shall have and hold sixty acres of land, in consideration that the said Edmund Ward do pay the Indians purely, and clear the said town of and from the said payment when need be, etc." Some years earlier than this transaction, it is likely that Edmund Ward, and possibly his aged father Samuel, removed from Fairfield to Eastchester. Samuel died Jan. 8, 1693, and his widow, Hannah, and son Edmund administered upon his estate. Under date Dec. 28, 1699, we find the following in the Greenfield, Conn., Probate Records: "Edmund Ward, belonging to the manor of Fordham, in the county of Westchester, in the province of New York, administrator on the estate of my honored father, Samuel Ward, late of Fairfield, in the Colony of Connecticut, deceased, at a special court held at Fairfield, Mar. 29, 1693, have by these presents, delivered unto my loving brother, William Ward, according to order of court, for his legacy, the several tracts of land, hereafter mentioned," etc. Edmund Ward was one of the foremost men of this new settlement of Eastchester. By special grant of the crown, he, in company with others, became proprietor of what was known as the Long Reach, or New Patent. "Anne, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, etc., the Queen, defender of the faith, etc., grants to Col. William Peartree and others (among them Edmund Ward) a tract of land in Westchester Co. Dated 23rd of Sep. in the 7th year of her Majesty's reign, 1708." (Bolton Hist. Westchester Co., vol. 1, p. 211.)

Mr. Ward was very active in all affairs pertaining to the welfare of the new settlement. He was Town Clerk, Recorder, etc., and held many offices of trust and responsibility. "The name of Ward was, during the 18th and the first half of the 19th centuries, that of the strongest family in the town of Eastchester. Edmund Ward was one of the patentees of the Long Reach grant. His son Edmund was the Colonial Member of Assembly, and his two grandchildren were distinguished in the Revolution—Edmund, for his inflexible self-sacrifice and loyalty, and Stephen, for his services in the patriot cause. Charles and Jonathan, sons of Stephen, rose to offices of influence and honor in the town." (Scharff History of Westchester Co., vol. 2, p. 750.)

Among other pedigrees given by Mr. Bolton in his History of Westchester Co. is that of Ward (vol. 1, p. 254). Edmund Ward, of Eastchester, patentee of Long Reach, is there recorded as son of Andrew Warde, of Fairfield. Some members of the Westchester branch of the family adhere to this view.

This John Ward was one of the executors of his nephew Edmund's estate. "I further nominate, constitute and appoint my well beloved wife, Phebe Ward, and my loving uncle, John Ward, executors of this my last will and testament." (From will of Edmund Ward, proved in Prerogative Court of New York, Apr. 27, 1732.) John Ward late in life seems to have removed to Peekskill, N. Y., where he was buried, and his monument is found. He thus became the founder of the large and influential family of that name in Peekskill, and was the ancestor of Judge John Currey and his brother Rev. Daniel Currey, D.D., one of the leading Methodist Episcopal clergymen of his day.

STEPHEN BURROUGHS 2d "was in many respects a remarkable man, not only as a pre-eminently successful merchant ship builder, ship owner and navigator—his vessels ploughing the seas in every direction, even to the distant ports of the Orient—but notwithstanding the magnitude and importance of his commercial interests, he was ardently given to philosophical speculation, becoming a recognized authority in the science of astronomy, which subject he pursued with all the pertinacity and acumen of a Newton or a Herschel; his deductions being quoted by more than one of the standard treatises of the day. He, moreover, occupied an exalted position in the realm of mathematics, being the author of the decimal monetary system of the U. S., the formula of which he submitted to Hon. William Samuel Johnson, who was U. S. Senator from Connecticut at the time; and he recognizing its practical utility, presented it to Congress, and an enactment was at once had under which Connecticut and Massachusetts began in 1785 to coin copper cents; the full decimal currency being evolved by degrees, until the full decimal system was made legal in 1798. In the old Stratfield Cemetery at Bridgeport, Conn., is his monument, upon which is inscribed the following epitaph:

Aaron Burr belonged to a Puritan family that for three generations had given to the Church and State men of eminence. He was graduated at Yale in his nineteenth year, having gained one of the three Berkeley scholarships, which entitled him to maintenance at the college for two years after graduating. While pursuing his post-graduate studies he was converted, and at once turned his attention to theology. At the age of twenty-two he became pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Newark, N. Jersey, where he soon acquired a commanding reputation as a pulpit orator. Here he also established a school for boys, which proved highly successful. He prepared for his students a Latin grammar (1752), which was long in use at Princeton. In later years he published a small work on the Supreme Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ. In 1748 he became president of Princeton College. In the Autumn

Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler was the chief organizer of the "Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company" in Oct., 1853, and was made its general manager. In 1855 he was elected its president, retaining the office until his death. He was justly regarded as the most active and public-spirited of Bridgeport's citizens during a long residence there, and although he never aspired to political preferment, was several times chosen to represent Bridgeport in both the upper and lower houses of the State Legislature. He was one of the commissioners appointed to design and supervise the construction of the State Capitol at Hartford; was a director of the City National Bank; an incorporator of the People's Savings Bank; vice-president of the Board of Education, and a director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.—"Sergeant Francis Nichols and His Descendants," p. 23.

General Wheeler when a youth was sent to West Point in 1854, and at the end of the then five years' course he was graduated. The records of that institution indicate that he was not more than mediocre in his work. But the little Georgian was known as a young man with no end of grit. Diminutive as he was he was ever ready to defend himself or any of his friends.

When the break came between the North and South, Wheeler was one of the first of the Southern officers in the United States Army to resign his commission and volunteer his services to the Army of the Confederacy. He entered as colonel of the Nineteenth Alabama Infantry. At the battle of Shiloh he was in command of a brigade, and won high praise from his superiors for conspicuous gallantry.

Soon after this historic battle General Wheeler was transferred to the cavalry, and early in 1862 he was placed in command of that arm of the service under General Braxton Bragg, in the West. In the great Confederate charge at the battle of Chickamauga, in 1863, it was General Wheeler who led the cavalry.

In the campaign against Sherman in Georgia, General Wheeler so distinguished himself that he was later appointed a Lieutenant-General, and at the close of the great conflict he was in command of the cavalry that was operating with the forces of General Joseph E. Johnston.

He was in the battles of Shiloh and Farmington, Miss.; the fights around Corinth, Perryville, Murfreesborough, Chickamauga, the siege of Knoxville, Ringgold, Rocky Face, Dalton, Resaca, Cassville, New Hope, battles around Kenesaw Mountain, battle of Peach Tree Creek, Decatur, battles around Atlanta, siege of Savannah, battles of Averysborough and Bentonville. Besides being in over 800 skirmishes General Wheeler commanded in more than 200 battles, many of which, considering the numbers engaged, were among the most severe and successful recorded in the history of cavalry.

After the close of the war General Wheeler studied law and set to work to restore his shattered fortunes. He made his home at Wheeler, Lawrence county, Ala., and established law offices at Wheeler and Courtland, where he soon built up a lucrative practice. In 1882 he was elected a Member of Congress, and was returned at each election after that till the war with Spain broke out.

General Wheeler was 62 years old in the spring of 1898 when this country was making hurried preparations for the inevitable war with Spain. He was a thin little man with a white beard and a partly bald head. He might

After the close of the war General Wheeler studied law and set to work to repair his shattered fortunes. He made his home at Wheeler, Lawrence county, Ala., and established law offices at Wheeler and Courtland, where he soon built up a lucrative practice. In 1882 he was elected a Member of Congress, and was returned at each election after that till the war with Spain broke out.

General Wheeler was 62 years old in the spring of 1898 when this country was making hurried preparations for the inevitable war with Spain. He was a thin little man with a white beard and a pretty bald head. He might easily have posed for a portrait of a Scottish Covenanter. But he was one of the first to offer his services to the country when it became apparent that a conflict with Spain could not be avoided.

General Wheeler was one of the foremost American leaders in the campaign at Santiago. When Shafter came to the conclusion, after two days of intermittent fighting along the lines of the Spanish earthworks, that a retreat might be necessary, it was General Wheeler who stood out against it. He was for sailing into the Spaniards with every available man, and his plan prevailed.

General Wheeler was out well in the front where he could see what was going on and direct the fire of his division to the best effect. At last he saw the thin line of the enemy begin to waver. The art of making war was not new to him, and letting out a whoop that could be heard even above the din of battle, he started toward that weakening point. The brave men charged up a hill, firing at random. There was no stopping that fierce charge ,and the rain of bullets that poured in on the foe.

At the close of this war he came back with the army that was landed at Montauk Point and in the weeks when the camp there was fever stricken he rendered heroic service. It was while he was in command there that his youngest son, a naval cadet, who was serving on his staff, was drowned while bathing in the surf.

General Wheeler became an officer in the regular army after the victorious campaign in Cuba, and he saw six months' hard service in the Philippines. He was a charter member of the Andrew Ward Association and one of its vice-presidents; he presided at the annual meeting of the Society just before his death.
